Pacemakers and Other Medical Devices

Studies have shown that there may be a potential interaction between mobile devices and normal pacemaker operation. The pacemaker industry recommends that people with pacemakers follow these guidelines to minimize any risk of interference with pacemaker operation:

- Always maintain a distance of 6 inches (15 cm) between the pacemaker and any mobile device that is turned on.
- Store the device on the opposite side of the pacemaker. Do not carry the device in a breast pocket.

- If you think that interference may be occurring, turn off the device immediately.

For other medical devices, consult with your physician or the manufacturer to determine if your mobile device may interfere with the medical device, and to determine any precautions that you can take to avoid interference.

Radio Frequency Exposure

This device is a mobile transmitter and receiver that uses its antenna to send and receive low levels of radio frequency (RF) energy for data communications. For body-worn applications, this device has been tested and meets FCC and global RF exposure guidelines when used with an accessory that contains no metal and that positions the device a minimum of 15 mm from the body.
